Miss Taylor, who has bought the Allen Millinery business, wants to close out the present stock of building a Macadam road from the head of Main street to the Millert turn. His estimate is as follows:

Excavating and getting road bed to grade..... $ 500.00
 Crushed stone (local)..... 750.00
 Asphalt under..... 1,500.00
 Pipe for surface water..... 50.00
 Curb basins..... 50.00
 Putting in catch basins, etc..... 200.00

Add 10 per cent..... $114.88
 Total..... $1,654.88

If the N. & P. Street Railway should pay their portion as is customary in some towns it would reduce the expense some $300.00.

This estimate shows that 3000 feet of road built in up-to-date manner will cost the town $1654.88, provided the railway would pay their portion of it.

So called permanent roads can be built but they cost money and a lot of it.

The committee appointed by the town at the last annual meeting to look into the road building problem do not recommend the purchase of a stone crusher and the building of Macadam roads. They are too expensive.

The committee are of the opinion that better earth and gravel roads can be made by the use of a steam roller, though in their report they refrain from advising the town to purchase a 20-ton $3000 roller but we infer they are in favor of it.

This committee visited Rumford, Topham, Brunswick, Saco and Biddeford, and tell us that in order to obtain good roads it is necessary to establish grades and drainage and bestow upon them care.

Shall the town of Norway buy a steam road roller? That's a question. Ought we to do it?

The town can have without expense the engineer's plans for the improvement of Main street and from them estimate of the expense of different kinds of roads can be made.

A Jolly Book Party.

The home of Mrs. Ernest Hutchins on Bridge St. was the scene of a jolly party Friday evening. This party was in the form of a "Book Party", and was given in honor of Elizabeth Davis and Ethel Bradbury. There were about twenty present and one of the pleasantest of evenings enjoyed by the company.

Each one present represented, either in costume or by some distinguishing mark, the title of some book. Mrs. June Hutchins represented, The Trail of the Lonesome Pine, by trailing a pine bough fastened to her dress; Elizabeth Davis represented, Lavender and Lilacs, and wore a dress containing lavender with a wide lace collar; Ethel Bradbury, The Brass Bell, and carried a small brass bell; Fannie Bynon and Jennie Mann represented, The Pickwick Papers, and had a paper with toothpicks and a lamp wick pinned to it; Blanche Smith and Christine Leavitt, Two Hearts and a Cross; Alice Schuener and Mrs. Ruth Parker, My Lady of Decorations, each decorated with jewelry and beads; Mrs. Fannie Cullinan, Oliver Twist, and wore a knot of hemp twisted into various shapes; Mrs. Maud Mann, The Man of the Hour, and wore a watch open to view; Grace Bennett, The La P. Lighters, and wore several strings of matches representing beads; Clara Schuener, The Pathfinder and carried a sash; Gertrude Murphy, The Conquest of Kitty; Viola Brown, Squire Finn, and carried a card containing a picture drawn in one corner and a colored fish with a lot of flies; Esther Hutchins, Under the Lilacs, and wore a wreath of lilacs; Etta Nevers, The Secret of a Lock and carried a small curling iron; Edith Parker represented the Rose in a Ring, and carried a small rose in her hair.

Blanche Smith guessed the names of the largest number of the books represented and was presented with a hand some valentine. During the remainder of the evening games were enjoyed and refreshments of ice cream, cake, fancy crackers, and punch was served.

VOLUME XLII.

Roads and Committees' Report.

F. W. Sanborn employed Stephen Litchfield, civil engineer of Brunswick to make a plan and estimate of the cost of building a Macadam road from the head of Main street to the Millert turn. His estimate is as follows:

Excavating and getting road bed to grade..... $ 500.00

 Asphalt under..... 1,500.00

Seventy-five Dollar Judge for Norway Municipal Court.

Tuesday, Feb. 28th, at Augusta, before the Committee on Legal Affairs will be a hearing on "an act additional to act creating Norway Municipal Court," which, being interpreted, means a recorder for the Norway Municipal Court.

This bill says the recorder is to have equal authority and powers with the judge and to hold court in his absence at a salary of $75 per year. The bill specifies that the recorder shall be a resident of Norway or Paris and to be appointed by the Governor.

The query—Who would accept this position, qualified in age and character, sufficiently learned in the law to discharge the duties of the judge for this ridiculously meager remuneration?

Can the taxpayers afford to pay more? Is it necessary to have a recorder? Real estate assessments can now be made by other means and at a less expense to the taxpayers. No doubt the recorder if of any kind might be an ornamental adjunct to go along with the new court rooms, but does public necessity or convenience require it?

This court at the present time costs the town $850 per year for rent and salary of the judge, and the total fines, fees and costs last year turned over to county were $204.39. This may be "an eye for an eye" but the average for the past four years is a little rising of $300 per annum.

Is an increased expenditure of money in this line necessary? We know how the taxpayers feel! Ought the bill to pass?

The burdened citizen who is chased by the tax collector answers with an emphatic "no."

Mrs. Clara R. Annis.

Thursday, February second, occurred the funeral of Mrs. Clara R. Annis at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Bradbury, 18 Tucker street, Rev. M. C. Ward officiating.

She had been sick for several weeks, and not getting any better, acted upon the doctor's advice and went to the hospital, but only lived six days after the operation. A good Christian ever ready to do what her hands found to do, it troubled her to have her friends go away.

She had followed the profession of nursing for several years. Her heart was bound up in her family. Her husband having died last March, her children were her "world." She leaves four children to be cared for by Mrs. Lenora F. Bradbury, Sanford M. Annis, Walter L. Annis and Mrs. Carrie W. Kennerson.

A Plea

For the Children of the Rural Schools.

Mr. Editor: As I cannot vote or have a voice in the business of the town I am going to ask you for space in your paper to make a plea for the children of the rural schools in the town of Norway.

It is in regard to music and drawing. As I understand it the town raises $500 a year to be spent for music and drawing which is spent in the village schools and at Norway Lake. It is a good thing and what should be done in every town; but why can't every school town have this luxury? Each tax payer pays his proportion of this $500. Why should just the few get the benefit? There is as much talent in the rural districts as in the village or at the Lake.

Now, the fathers of the children in the rural districts are paying for the children of the village and Lake to be educated in music and drawing when his own children have to go without. Why is it? And is it right? Why not let them all alike? Can't something be done so that each child will have an equal part?

Now fathers stand for the rights of their own children; see that they have equal rights with the rest of the children in the town. Give them all a like chance and you may wake up to find you have George Pratt, Michael Argolis and Hogathis right here in Norway.

The passenger train which is due at South Paris at 3:26 was wrecked Wednesday afternoon about a mile and a half below South Paris station.

The tender turned around sideways and in so doing set the brakes which stopped the train, and had it not been for this the accident would have been more serious or had the accident happened a length of the train ahead undoubtedly it would have gone over the embankment, but fortunately there was no one seriously injured.

The wrecking train was sent for and arrived early in the evening and the work of clearing the tracks was commenced. The Norway Branch train in charge of E. N. Anderson, H. L. Wilson and the mail and baggage to West Paris where the railroad men took the train to Island Pond from West Paris.

A little backache at first. Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak.

Urinary disorders quickly follow; Diabetes and finally Bright's disease. This is the downward course of kidney illness.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Norway citizen.

M. M. Kilgore, Danforth St., Norway, Me., says: "I do not think there is another kidney remedy on the market as effective as Doan's Kidney Pills."

I suffered from backache and pains through my loins. My kidneys were badly disordered and the secretions passed irregularly. At times my back was so lame and sore that I could scarcely stand. I did not rest well at night and felt miserable in every way. At last I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply from Stone's Drug Store. They cured me and I have been well since. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house at all times and recommend them whenever I hear anyone complaining of kidney trouble."

A Double Disturbance.

By Edward A. Tyler.

In this country great and grand. By the sphyras from the fanned;

(Just be careful where you stand, On in some other place you'll land.)

Land of liberty and light. While the sun shines always bright (Go me to keep that up all night! If you are not up to the fight.)

And the best beneath the skies Richly grows and multiplies. (Spies that follow ever spies He brownish moth and dirty flies)

Making suitable a place For the noblest of the race; (It is surely a disgrace How that fellow holds his face.)

It is certainly sublime To be living at this time, (I will give the foot a dime If he'll cut out our old climb.)

With the wisest and the best, The almighty evildoer, (If he ain't the darndest pest, Then ever didn't let us rest.)

So there will gladly dwell Till he chatters and tells his knell. (If he had some more should well, He would surely go to bang.)

The Business Man's Ten Commandments.

RULE I. Don't lie—if wastes my time and yours. I'm sure to catch you in the end and that's the wrong end.

RULE II. Don't catch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes my face long.

RULE III. Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you pay for it. I can't increase your profit if you increase my profit.

RULE IV. You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt or keep my shop.

RULE V. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good men, do not see temptation when they meet it.

RULE VI. Mind your own business and a time you'll have business of your own.

RULE VII. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. The employee who is willing to steal for me is also capable of stealing from me.

RULE VIII. It's none of my business what you do at night. But if dissipation affects your work the next day and you do half as much as I do, you'll last half as long as you hope.

RULE IX. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a man to say vanity, but I need one for my dollars.

RULE X. Don't kick if I kick—if you're worth while correcting, you are worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

WIFE GOT TIP TOP ADVICE.

"Don'ts" for Young Wives.

"Don't take other people into your confidence if your John offends you," says Margaret E. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion for January. "Neither your mother, your sister, your college chum, your dearest girl friend nor any agreeable stranger whom you meet the other day should be the recipient of your grievances, if you have them."

Your husband should be a sanctuary inviolate from profanation, and remember that it is profaned when you complain to some one else of John's ill temper, his neglect or his parsimony. I know this is a very difficult don't, but the instant you permit a person to complain of her husband to people beyond her door, she breaks down a barrier and makes a way for every sort of trouble to enter the field of home.

"Don't be so meek and spiritless that you suffer in silence, while you permit your husband by letting him drift in the role of a domestic despot. Mrs. Henry De la Pasture in her novel, 'The Tyrant,' shows the eclipse of gaiety and the enervation of family life which follow in the wake when a husband is overbearing as a wife over-gentle."

"What ever you do, don't nag or sulk. A wife who goes about with the air of a martyr winter-kills her happiness. Don't be inconsolable when your husband tries late at the office or when you are waiting. Don't object to his bringing home guests unannounced. If they arrive with him unexpectedly, don't apologize for the house or the meal or the children or anything else. Put on extra plates and cups and let them share 'pot luck.'"

"Don't have bills, if you can help yourself. Pay as you go, and do persuade your husband to give you a definite housekeeping allowance from the beginning of your housekeeping. You seem to be afraid of the maid. Thousands of us are in awe of this personage, and she has unfortunately discovered it and behaves accordingly."

Breaks Up Cold.

Thousands are Using the New Method with Wonderful Results.

Out of this prescription, Madam: you are the one that must keep the health of the household, and you are the one in these days of high prices that must manage things economically.

Someone in the family may have a cold. It is not a big matter, but it is a head, perhaps in the chest, and it is a matter not where; here is some advice and a prescription that will break up any cold in a few hours, and without taking harmful drugs or strong drinks.

First of all, look after the bowels. The tongue will show whether the liver is right or not. If the bowels need attention, a good dose of castor oil made at home, or a little orange juice will do the trick, although any reliable cathartic will do.

Then try this economical treatment: into a bowl of boiling water pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI (pronounce it "Hoy-mey") and breathe over the bowl with a towel, and breathe deep into the lungs the soothing, healing vapor.

Breathe this vapor for five or ten minutes until the head feels fine and clear; then go to bed and sleep soundly until morning.

A bottle of HYOMEI costs 50 cents at Noyes Drug Store and druggist everywhere. A complete outfit which includes a hard rubber pocket inhaler with a towel, and breathe deep into the lungs the soothing, healing vapor.

"Breathe this vapor for five or ten minutes until the head feels fine and clear; then go to bed and sleep soundly until morning."

Henry W. Parks.

Henry W. Park died at his home in Mexico, Friday morning, after an illness of two years. Mr. Park had been in trade in Mexico since 1880, with the exception of one year, when he was in the ordinance department in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Park was a member of Blazing Star lodge of Masons, of Tuscon lodge, I. O. O. F. He had held many town offices and was treasurer of his town for 25 consecutive years; and had been a member of the State legislature. Since the close of the Civil War, he has been postmaster at Mexico Center, resigning in April 1909, on account of failing health.

Mr. Park was born in Dixfield 77 years ago. He was educated in the common schools and high school of Dixfield.

He was three times married, his first wife being Glean T. Phelps of Dixfield. Two children were born to them, Albert D. Park of South Paris and Mrs. Eliza P. Richards of Mexico. His second wife was Ellen Reed of Mexico and they had one son, Elmer C. of Bethel. His third wife was Emma C. Gleason of Mexico. Their four children are Mrs. A. E. Small, Mrs. Wallace Moore, Mrs. Clifford Rolfe and Henry W., Jr., who lives at home with his mother. All the children survive.

Spelling Book at Wellesley.

More than half of the young women at Wellesley college have been found deficient in ability to "spell well." Six hundred students are to give up their Saturday afternoons, as well as other recreation periods of the week, to drills in orthography. With the opening of the new term the whole undergraduate body is made to understand that bad spelling will no longer be tolerated, that a bachelor's degree will be denied those who shall neglect or ignore the forms of written words.

What all the schools that prepared these charming young ladies for college. Their trouble extends back to the grammar schools, to the elementary schools, to the high schools, to the colleges, to the universities. The methods by which correct spelling is taught have changed. The days of the "spelling book" are past, when every pupil learned by emulation the difference in the endings of "assessable" and "collectible." The present generation of college women was taught to read before it learned the alphabet. They never learned to read letter by letter, as John Ruskin advised, but were taught instead to "skim" their words and sentences in a fashion that left no time for intensive application to the very forms and characters. The classes in spelling and punctuation at Wellesley will have able teachers, no doubt, who will do their best to supply the deficiencies of the fourth and fifth grades. They have a sorry task.

Have plenty of windows in the dairy barn if you would keep the cows in good condition and reduce the number of bacteria that get into the milk. Use sense in opening. A bad summer's night-chores more windows open than a cold winter one.

Almon Crooker.
Died in Oxford Jan. 29, Almon Crooker aged 72 years. Mr. Crooker was a kind friend and genial neighbor and a brave soldier.

His genuine kindness of heart responded promptly to the call of danger, friend and comrade. He waited for no draft neither hired a substitute but was one of the first who responded to "Lincoln's call for volunteers." When his time expired he re-enlisted and rose to the rank of lieutenant in those dark days that tired men's souls.

He is survived by a widow, Rose Snell Crooker, who married him on the eve of his second enlistment in the 60's.

Two new telephones were installed in this exchange last week:
Walter A. A Woman's Solution

By JANE PINCKNEY BENNETT

"Please consider our engagement broken," she snapped.

"Have you considered it broken?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean have you thought over the consequences of a broken engagement between us? We have been engaged for a month; all our friends know that we are lovers."

"Were lovers."

"Supposed to be lovers."

"That's more like it."

"Now suppose we announce that all is off between us. People will naturally be curious to know the reason."

"It is none of their business."

"But they will make it their business."

"I shall tell them that I have been very much disappointed in you."

"And what shall I say about it?"

"What you like."

"I shall say I discovered that I am unworthy of a girl with so much amiability."

"There was no reply to this."

"What is to be considered in the matter is whether you contemplate renewing our engagement after it has once been broken."

"Never."

"Very well; so far so good. In that case I am free to engage myself to whosoever I please."

"And it is my privilege to do the same."

"Certainly. Tomorrow evening we dine at the Spinglers'. Naturally I shall be expected to take you in to dinner. This will be embarrassing for both of us. Had you not better send word to Mrs. Spingler that our engagement is off?"

"She pondered a few moments, toying with her engagement ring, which she had pulled off her finger, then said:

"Mrs. Spingler is a very prying woman and a faithful gossip. She'll wish to know all about how it happened and if she is not informed will give her own version of it to every one present and every one not present."

"That is one of the points to be considered, or rather, was one of the points to be considered. It's too late now. You have dismissed me and said that you will never recall me. We are both free to marry some one else."

"There was a pause here. She slipped the engagement ring over the point of her finger, as though afraid he was about to take it away. Then she said:

"The breaking of our engagement is one thing; its announcement to the world is another. Is it necessary that we should announce it through Mrs. Spingler?"

"We might give it out today to some one else."

"It seems singular that you, who have so many times sworn that you loved me, can't bear the idea of sitting beside me for an hour or two at a dinner party."

"What would we talk about?"

"The weather, I suppose."

"No, thank you; I don't go to dinners to talk about the weather. But let us leave this subject of the dinner and agree upon a reason to give our friends for our quarrel."

"We will give them the true one, of course."

"And that is?"

"Your horrible treatment of me."

"Please make a statement of it."

"Oh, you are better at stating things than I am. Frame it yourself. Any version you give of it will be satisfactory to me."

"Very well, I shall put it in this way: It started—what started it? I've forgotten."

"Why, it was something about—wasn't it about—funny I can't remember what started it. I only know that you acted horribly."

"Well, then, we will put it in that way. We'll say that we can't remember what the quarrel was about, but I acted horribly."

"That would be considered very silly of us."

"Silly of you, I fear."

"Not if they knew how horribly you have acted."

"What did I say or do?"

"Everything that was disagreeable."

"Name one."

"Oh, how bothersome you are! How can I tell you what you said when I can't remember what it was about?"

"I suppose then we are to announce to the world that, not being able to remember the cause of our quarrel, it is impossible to give a cause for the breaking of our engagement."

"That would be too ridiculous for anything. People would laugh at us."

"Upon the whole, I think you were right when you said that it's none of people's business why we have agreed to part. We will give no reason."

"Do you think that would be possible?"

"No; I don't. But since I've not been able to suggest any feasible cause myself I've fallen back upon your own suggestion."

"There was no reply to this, only a stolid stare at the floor, while the finger of the engagement ring continued."

"Come," he said presently. "I leave it all to you. Decide what course we shall take. Name a way out of the dilemma."

"They were sitting side by side. She dropped her hand on his. She had slipped the engagement ring back on her finger. He put his arm about her waist, drew her to him and kissed her. "A woman's solution," he said.

Ground hog day has come and gone. No shadow did appear. And now the wise ones prophesy An early spring this year.

PARIS.

James E. Cole.

James E. Cole died very suddenly at his home about a mile from the village, on Monday morning. Mr. Cole was the son of George W. and Miranda (Cooper) Cole.

He was a veteran of the Civil war, having served in the 12th Maine, and a member of M. K. Kimball Post. Until his health failed he was employed by the Paris Manufacturing company. For several years he has only been able to do the work on his home place. He leaves two sons, Perley, who lives at home, and Herbert Cole of Antim, N. H., and one daughter, Fannie, who has made her home in the West for a number of years.

He is also survived by three brothers, George W., Joseph B. and Harry G., all of Paris; two sisters, Mrs. Adalaid Record of Buckfield and Mrs. Henrietta York of Paris. He was about 66 years old. His oldest son, James E., Jr., died about a month ago.

In spite of the bad traveling our local church had a good audience in attendance Sunday, to hear a most interesting and eloquent sermon by the presiding elder of the Western Maine district. The new pastor at West Paris, Mr. Souther, who supplies Greenwood, was here also for the first time.

Invitations had been out for some time for the marriage reception of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Bennett which was to take place at Cole's hall, but owing to the weather last Saturday, the day set, the affair is postponed until Saturday, February 11th. A cordial invitation is extended to all the young people's friends to be present on that date.

Upon good authority we have it that during the cold weather recently, Frank Elwell had the hair frozen to her head between time of washing up for breakfast and getting to mirror, sick up for that important meal, and as he was in a hurry, he figures the freezing up process occupied about thirty seconds by the clock. Applications of hot water was necessary to thaw out his hair. Can anyone beat this for a cold weather story?

Buildings Caught Fire.

The buildings of Frank Morse caught fire Saturday from some bedding that was left to dry near it. The stove was in an upper room and all the family happened to be down stairs at the time; some of the bedding was near enough to drop onto the stove and caught fire. The smoke was so thick that it was impossible to get into the room.

Howard Fickett was helped on to the roof, where he broke in a window and threw snow into the room. This made the smoke lift enough so they could see to work.

Luckily, they had a telephone and in a few minutes the neighbors soon gathered and helped in putting out the fire. The damage was very slight; a little bedding was burned, one window was broken, and the upper part of the house was badly smoked up.

No Wedding Ring.

A doughty young thinker has introduced a significant social reform. He marks his engagement by presenting his fiancée with a set of books instead of an engagement ring.

After having made a long retrospect of human society he concludes it is time for a change. He deprecates the primitive day when man either captured a female partner or purchased her from her parents, and when, once in possession, he placed a ring on her finger as a symbol of inferiority, a sign that she was his personal property.

Thus reads the record, but this gives little idea of the wild scenes in the basketball game Thursday night at Norway Opera House. The Bryar & Ponds were advertised to play with the Norway Regals, but at the "ninth hour" the North Bridgtons took their place. The audience "panted to the music of Stearns' orchestra while awaiting the arrival of the North Bridgtons.

The Norway Regals are rather a light weight team when the North Bridgtons walked into the arena they looked like young giants. Even then the novice thought perhaps the science in this game would even up the physical difference between the teams.

Tough work predominated and at times it would have taken an expert to have told whether it was a basketball game or a prize fight. It was a wonder that the Norway scored as much as they did, they were so overshadowed by the heavier team. Many of them were head and shoulders taller and twice as broad.

The Norway looked almost helpless in their hands, but they put up a good game against fearful odds. Occasionally one would receive a more severe blow or fall that would arrest their career but with the help of friends they would come to and on went the mad game. Apparently no bones were broken, but there were wounds and bruises.

Neither of these teams pitted against other teams of equal weight and skill must put up a pretty game.

The Advertiser has received a marked clipping from Philadelphia:—"A heavy sign over the sidewalk in front of a shoe store on Market street, near Ninth, one of the busiest sections of the shopping district, fell this afternoon, killing three persons outright and injuring four others. The street was thronged with pedestrians and a panic ensued, a score of police being called to quell it."

Evidently the one who sent it has heard the good news that Norway has no swing signs over the sidewalks or public streets. Norway has three dangerous swing signs over private land used as a public thoroughfare. Can the owners afford to take the risk? One of these signs blew down last summer in a gale, but fortunately did not hit anyone or do other damage.

The penalty for the foregoing violations as will be seen in Article IX will be a fine not exceeding $5.

Churches Need Business Management.

Don C. Seitz of the World Applies Village Lessons to Brooklyn Situation.

We quote further from the speech before the Universalist club at Brooklyn, to which were about thirty men representing the Universalist churches in the Metropolitan district.

The little Maine town of Norway half a century ago, had two churches, one a Universalist and the other a Congregational. More than a third of the town's people were church-going individuals. Along came an enterprising Methodist minister. The town savings bank was accommodated, and a Methodist church went up. Presently two or three women and a few men in the town started a new movement and a Baptist church was organized. Then a hotel landlady started an Episcopal church, while later several French Canadian in town were visited by a priest and a Catholic parish was founded. For a long time the Adventists have used the G. A. R. hall for services.

By this time the third of the townspeople who went to church, of course, were divided in their denomination faith. There were six churches instead of two. There six there today.

Don C. Seitz, now business manager of the World, was a minister's son in Norway at that time. Mr. Seitz, speaking at the one hundred and fourth meeting of the Universalist Club, told of the church conditions in the town where his boyhood was spent. There ought to be but those two original churches in Norway today, he said, to stand for moral forces and right living in town. As it is with six churches there, they are starving.

It is the same the country over, Mr. Seitz said, not only in village, but in city, and it is true today in Brooklyn. Poor business management in the church is responsible, he said, and that is been familiar with the history of the Universalist church in Brooklyn since 1870, and he stated at the meeting last night that it was a melancholy story.

The successful business, Mr. Seitz said, in beginning, does not always have capital to make it go, but it must have good business management; and that is the business management; and that is the way with the church. The Universalist church once was a factor in this city and its vanishing is due not to decadence in liberal faith, but to poor business management. Where good business management has prevailed the church has thrived, and Mr. Seitz pointed to All Souls church as an example, for it moved from a decadent church neighborhood to a section where the population was growing; sentiment was set aside, and therein church officers showed good business sense.

Mr. Seitz said that the Catholic church flourishes as it goes along, since it builds geographically, the officers studying to learn where the Catholic people are, and building accordingly. "With the five missionary sense that belongs to the Catholic church," he said, "instead of effecting in the poorest neighborhoods where the wealthiest people live, the Catholic locate in poor neighborhoods where the poor people of their denomination live."

Mr. Seitz then described church conditions in the Maine town, a fair example, he said, of poor business management that obtains all over the country. This doesn't work for good religion, good morals or good sense.

The speaker deplored the coming of "money bags" into the church. A wealthy man with little ambition often seeks to exert his personality through opening his pocket book; other leaders in support of the church feel relieved and "they walk toward the door." Their pewers are emptied. The moneyed individual with the dominating personality continues to loosen his purse strings and is elected one of the trustees, play and by the "money bag" begins to run the church and other men step aside and more pews are emptied. But presently the "money bags" tire at the lack of interest shown by the former leaders, and they too step aside, and the church is wrecked. Democracy should rule in the business judgment of the church, said Mr. Seitz, the money man should not be welcomed so eagerly.

At the end of Mr. Seitz talk, Mr. Porter invited discussion and questioning, and he called upon Herbert F. Gunnison, another Norway man, to speak. Mr. Gunnison is a son of a minister of the same little Norway church of which Mr. Seitz's father was pastor. Mr. Gunnison's father was the first president of the Norway Savings bank and his portrait now has a conspicuous place on the bank's walls.

Mr. Gunnison began by saying that he considered Mr. Seitz one of the best business men in the country today. It was true, he said, that there was a depressing stagnation today in the Universalist church, but there was a less loyalty and efficiency shown by men of this denomination than by those of other churches.

Mr. Gunnison was a minister's son in Norway at the time that Mr. Seitz was a boy there. He recalled Norway's church history, and said that Brooklyn was much the same today as Norway. A similar operation among the different denominations must be had to accomplish things, he said, and he felt that the churches were getting more sensible in this respect. He urged that the Universalist church take the Christian Science lesson to heart, for in that denomination the people feel that they have received something from their church, and they are willing to give in return. "Study and work out our salvation on this line," Mr. Gunnison said, "and in doing this the minister must do his share, and for his share the pastor should receive a larger salary."

NEWRY.

Mrs. A. H. Powers is gaining slowly. Mrs. Marcia Evans from New London, Conn., visited in town last week. Lee E. Towler from Los Angeles, Cal., visited his cousin, A. H. Powers, last week.

Eighteen inches of snow fell here Saturday, and road breaking seems to be the order of the day now. Tuesday it is snowing and it looks as though there might be as much more snow.

"When a woman is born in Maine there is no knowing how many strange pines she will strike her capable fingers into," says the Brooklyn Eagle. It may be set down as a fact, however, that any one with which a Maine born woman has anything to do is more to the purpose than that for which any other woman is in any way responsible.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband took him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like I, too, I can do my own housework, look my garden, and enjoy my life. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."

Mrs. Della Betts, Sikeston, Mo. / The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

The Winter Hen.

When Charlie Stewart came to call.

Most of us know—all of us should know, that winter hens are divided into two classes, those that lay and those that do not lay, even if you feed them on patent concoctions that cost more to buy than to raise. The winter hen is the true standard for egg quotations, because if a farmer who is a mere producer of eggs should ever aspire to lofty flights, such as becoming a merchant and selling direct to the consumer. Let everybody stick to his calling, say we, and if he were born to be a clod of the field, it costs more than the education is worth to get out of the old ruts.

It becomes obvious then that the winter hen, which will not lay eggs must become fat from over eating, and as eggs refuse to start even under feeding on cayenne pepper, the sooner the non laying winter hen is sacrificed to the bap, or the stew kettle the better it is for the hen and for the proprietor of the hen.

There is no soul or divinity in the modern hen business, as it is conducted here in Maine, and so weak longer can the red combed and jound mother of a family spend half a day scratching among the rank burdocks behind the barn. No more shall she uproot the newly planted peas of spring or the pink early potatoes of July. She refuse to start even under feeding on cayenne pepper, the sooner the non laying winter hen is sacrificed to the bap, or the stew kettle the better it is for the hen and for the proprietor of the hen.

If the new hen with all the modern attachments were put through a course in the Shorter Catechism and asked regarding what was the first duty of a hen, the answer must be:

"To lay as many eggs as possible when eggs are high, and then to perish a 40 cents a pound at the behest of the summer board."

Look at the subject in any light you will, and there seems no other way out of it—for a hen. It is eat more hot and "driving" foods, to lay more eggs, to earn more money so as to buy a lot for the laying of more eggs, for the buying of more food. No Roman slave was ever more firmly bound to the galley oar than the latest kind of a hen is to the important Egg Record. The idea has become an obsession to all hens, to many roosters and to more human beings than one cares to contemplate with cold indifference.

A little pathos and poetry and profit of growing hens can be condensed within that famous old jingle which declared:

"My old hen with yellow legs,
She laid her master many eggs,
One every day,
To buy what my old hen does lay."

While the hen continues to produce eggs, she is a jewel, a treasure, a pearl beyond price, an alderman, a gold mine! But as soon as the egg bow is shut off her dear old neck is twisted off and the thrubbing carcass is tossed off the fashionable restaurant, where she is sold as "broiled live" for 75 cents "per,"—two per cent.

From natural inclination the hen is a cheerful and contented creature, and in harmony with the universe and at ease she would burrow in the sunny bank of a choice flower bed forever and become a tame and companionable. Never having heard anybody but her own rooster caw and the advent of dawn she is willing to swear that her own rooster is a better singer than Patti or any other famous singer. Such was her intention, and such she was until she became enthusiastic with the spirit of commercialism.

All is changed now since the egg making taken her in hard, and she is compelled to enter the tomb like enclosure of the trap net once every day, and she passes under the fatal wire spring, and hears the deadly guillotine fall behind her. She knows her duty, and must perform it in full, or else the order goes forth to sacrifice her to the summer boarder.

And still there are good and Christian people right here in our midst who think they would like to be "hens!"—Bangor News.

HANOVER.

Mildred Dyer is suffering from an attack of erysipelas. Rev. J. H. Little of Bethel was the guest of J. B. Roberts and family last Thursday.

Etta M. Howe, our music teacher, has recently added to her other class at South Rumford.

Mrs. Lucy Folsom of Milan, N. H., and granddaughter, Norma Frost of South Framingham, Mass., are visiting relatives.

Helen M. Staples, who spent the early part of the winter with friends at North Bridgton, is now with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Will Howe at Waltham, Mass.

A most enjoyable and successful affair was the installation of officers of Mishem, kwa Temple, No. 48, Pythian Sisters, which was held Friday evening, Jan. 27. A large company of sisters, members of Oxford Bear lodge, K. of P., and other guests were present. The following officers were very ably installed by D. D. G. C. Mrs. Allen E. Staples, assisted by Mrs. Etta A. Smith, G. S. and Mrs. Ada Hutchins as G. M.

E. S.—Mrs. Eva Hayward.
E. J.—Mrs. Amy Hopkins.
M. of R. C.—Etta M. Howe.
M. of F.—Mrs. Emma Barker.
G.—Georgia Abbott.

A military drill was presented by 16 ladies in a most creditable manner, calling forth much applause from the spectators. Following the installation, a delicious supper of oysters, cake, coffee and fruit was served. Daniel was enjoyed during the latter part of the evening.

LOCKE'S MILLS. Bert Goodwin was in Bethel, Saturday. Mrs. James Crooker is visiting relatives. G. R. Bartlett went to Berlin, N. H., on business, Monday.

Vesta Woodis is spending a few weeks in Lewiston, with her sister. The Misses Eva and Blanche Bryant are visiting their uncle, Othonald Bryant at a few weeks. For a few weeks, the many friends of Fred Bubier, who recently had his leg amputated, are pleased to learn that he is recovering. Mrs. Frank Cummings was in Lewiston, Saturday to see her sister, Mrs. Will Bean, who is in the C. M. G. Hospital after an operation for appendicitis.

Arthur J. Stevens is the newly commissioned postmaster at South Andover.

Abraham Lincoln.

It has been with some difficulty that the ancestry of Abraham Lincoln has been traced back to Samuel Lincoln of Jefferson County, Kentucky, and located in 1653 and located at Hingham, Mass. His descendants, who were Quakers, settled in Amity Township, N. J., and finally in Rockingham County in Virginia.

Abraham Lincoln, President Lincoln's grandfather, came from Virginia to Jefferson County, Kentucky, and located on the south side of Licking Creek under a government warrant, and built his log cabin, where he and his family, of five children made their home.

Abraham Lincoln was the son of Thomas and Nancy (Hanks) Lincoln and was born in Hardin County, Kentucky, Feb. 12, 1809. His father was a carpenter by trade and was considered ignorant and thriftless but his mother was a woman of noble character.

In 1816 the family moved to Indiana, where his mother died two years later, when he was not quite eight years of age. He was exceptionally ambitious from the very outset and although he never had over a year's schooling tried exceedingly hard to learn and obtain an education. Among the books which he had access to and which he thoroughly studied were the Bible, Shakespeare's Plays, Robinson Crusoe, Pilgrim's Progress, a history of the United States and Weems's Washington.

When about 21 years of age his father moved to Illinois and they settled on the north fork of the Sangamon, which empties into the Ohio river. Here he worked at clearing and aiding his father about the rude farm which they were carrying on.

Some years after moving to Illinois he made a trip down the river on a flat bottomed boat to New Orleans and a little later made the second trip. On these trips, through the slave states, he had an excellent opportunity to study into the slave trade and he saw the true nature of slavery.

In 1832 after serving as a volunteer, he was chosen captain of a company of volunteers for service in the Black Hawk War. He afterwards returned to Sangamon and made his abode in the little mushroom town of New Salem. Throughout all these years he had been keeping in touch with the current events of the day and with his keen intellect had thoroughly understood the situation regarding the country's welfare.

At the pathos and poetry and profit of growing hens can be condensed within that famous old jingle which declared:

Winter Life of Wild Creatures.

To keep alive during the Northern winters, all living creatures need shelter and food. How animals make their way through the winter months is a most interesting chapter in natural history.

Bears, badgers, raccoons and skunks have a simple way; they close up shop, so to speak, and go to sleep until Mother Nature is over her annual spell of stentness. None of the four is a swift hunter or runner, but they rather incline toward a certain aldermanic ease, which seems to fit their physique and their station in the wild life of forest or field.

Generally nature provides liberally for this class. Almost everything is food for one or all of them. Berries, nuts and corn, young birds, roots, insects and worms, gophers and mice, even carrion when nothing better can be found. As a result of liberal feeding and a quiet preparation for winter, they are in good condition when the cold weather comes. They are not like the birds that freeze hard and digging and nosing around after food no longer pays, they just retire for a nap of several months.

The bear curls up under a root or log or under a small natural cavity, and a blanket of snow soon completes his shelter. The raccoon finds a hollow tree, while badgers and skunks retire into burrows they have dug into the ground. Now the stores must be blown and the four sleepers no longer care for the weather. The raccoon fills a hollow tree with a heavy coat of fat and a liberal store of fat furnishes food and fuel for his body. The fires of life are banked and burn low, and who will say that the winter sleepers have not, in upon, at least, as successful a successful solution of a difficult problem as any of their more active competitors of field, marsh or forest?

Many Others Sleep Away Long Winter. Indeed, we might easily increase this list of four to the legendary seven or any greater number. Woodchucks, gophers and chipmunks also sleep away the long winter in burrows in the ground. It is an accident befalls them, such as untimely floods, the tracks of all these winter sleepers will again be seen when the birds return north and the buds begin to swell.

A large number of the wild do not hibernate. Wolf, fox and panther, lynx and wildcat, mink, weasel, marten and fisher now follow their hunting trails with even more keenness than during the time of abundance of summer. They have no fixed territory as all a boy knows his grandfather's orchard, and they can always find shelter in storms, and generally they find enough food to bring them safely through, though gaunt and hungry they may be, when at last spring again unlocks the great storehouse of nature.

These active, flesh-eating hunters could give most of us a lesson in fasting; they eat when meat is plentiful and fast when it is none. Most of them can probably fast without special preparation. If a wolf gets one full meal a week he will come through the winter strong and in good condition.

But where hunters can live there must be those that are hunted. There are fish eaters there must be those that change grass into flesh for them. It is true that a large number of the peaceful folk nature do not go to sleep with the groundhog and the gopher.

Rabbits' Life Uncertain.
Moose, elk and deer find browse and grass all winter, if the snowfall is not too heavy.

Squirrels, rabbits and wood mice also find their daily bread the year round and it is principally the timid rabbit and the legions of wild mice whose meat feeds wolf and fox, lynx and wildcat, as well as a host of smaller hunters. The snowshoe rabbit of the Northern woods are generally amazingly numerous for several years, then a plague carries them off by thousands, so that for a year or two one may follow the forest trail without seeing a rabbit. During these years the lynxes also go suddenly scarce. The explanation is that the lynxes die of starvation when the rabbits die of the plague. This is nature's way of winnowing out all but the very strongest of limbs and the most keen of senses and intelligence.

Not a few wild creatures have learned the wisdom of lying in store for rainy days, or rather for snowy and stormy days. The mink collects in some burrow or hollow as much as a bushel of frozen game, consisting of ducks and birds, muskrats, mice and rabbits. Some of the mink's winter stores are acorns and evergreen twigs with buds on them. On one winter's scouting trip I found a mass of linden twigs stored away in a hollow tree. It was evident that no human hand had placed them there, and the fact that the twigs were so plainly I had found the emergence cache of red or gray squirrel.

True Conservationists.
The wild mice store up many kinds of seeds. Once while accidentally digging into a deserted mouse burrow, I found a handful of small stony nutlets, which had all been cracked by some little mouse years ago. It took me several days to identify the seeds, which suddenly as I passed through my mind seed after seed that I knew, it flashed upon me that they were the stone seeds of the bladdernut, a shrub which grows profusely in the pieces of woodland where I had been scouting around during the day.

The distribution of the seeds of the bladder-nut bush has been a riddle to me for many years, and it is a bit of wonder how the light would puzzle any naturalist or woodsman. The little wild-mice are better conservationists, better foresters, than we humans. When they gather their crops they always leave plenty of seeds from which young bushes will grow as the old ones die.

Two animals, the muskrat and the beaver, have chosen a kind of winter quarters which certainly no human would have recommended to them. Every winter the muskrat builds a house. They are built of rushes, roots and mud. The family living room is always damp and wet and is located only a few inches above the water level. The harder it freezes the more it snows, the warmer and safer is the muskrat's house. Lakes and rivers become icebound, but the muskrats live happy and content unless some cruel trapper cuts their dam or drives his long-tailed spear through its roof.

Hunt for Food Under Ice.
They are not asleep, but under the ice they swim and dive for their food of roots and bulbs. They have small eat-

The Power of Suggestion.

A physician is fond of relating a personal experience showing the power of suggestion. He says that a young clerk, staggered from overwork and the heat of a trying summer, consulted him as to his condition.

He put the usual questions by telephone or letter on the morrow. The next day the patient received a letter from the physician telling him that one of his lungs was seriously affected and that his heart was not quite as it should be. He was told to quit his affairs in order; that though he might live for weeks, or even months, it was important that he should leave nothing unsettled.

Naturally such news, practically a death warrant, quite unnerved the patient. He stayed home that day from the office, and in a short time was in a most serious state. His people, alarmed, sent for the doctor.

On his arrival the physician was astounded. "Why, my friend, what have you been doing to yourself? You certainly were all right yesterday." "It's my lungs, doctor," said the patient.

"Lungs, fiddlesticks! There is nothing at all the matter with your lungs," replied the doctor.

"Why," said the patient, "you told me in your letter that my lungs were so seriously affected that I had but a few days more to live." And he produced the fatal letter.

"Well," said the doctor, "here is a pretty mess. I wrote you to take a few weeks' vacation at the seashore or in the mountains, and you would be as good as new in a short time. The letter you received was intended for another man. My secretary must have mixed the envelopes."

As may be imagined, the patient was overjoyed. It is needless to say his recovery was rapid.

And the other, he with the weak lungs and a torn heart, on the other peering the letter intended for the other man, went at once to the mountains with the result that, though years have passed, he is in reasonably good condition.—Health Culture.

PRYBURG.

The Cameron family have moved into their new house. It is a model of convenience and very attractive outwardly.

Clarence Kimball's horse was frightened last week by an unreasonable auto, and kicked a man clear of sleigh, harness, etc., including driver, and proceeded to run away.

Stephen Irish died suddenly after an illness of only two days. He had not been in good health for a year or more and a severe cold contracted Thursday, rapidly developed into pneumonia. Mr. Irish was a comrade of the Grand Army, a member of Grover Post. He served as a private in the 18th Regiment Maine Volunteers and when his term expired, he re-enlisted in the 31st Maine and served till the close of the war. Since the death of his wife, his daughter Maud has been a devoted home-maker for him. Besides her, he is survived by two sons, Charles of East Conway, and Elmer of Waltham, Mass., a sister, Mrs. John W. French of Conway, and two brothers. The funeral service conducted by Rev. Mr. Stone was held at the home of his son Charles. Interment at West Fryeburg. Grover Post performed their burial service in accordance with the expressed wish of Mr. Irish.

LIFE SAVED AT DEATH'S DOOR.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Tex., "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and then I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me."

Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years. Quick, safe, sure, it is the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, laryngitis, asthma, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. 50c & $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by The Noyes Drug Store. 5-8

The Story of a Deer.

One morning a deer was in the forest with her little fawn. The father had gone away to a lake to get a drink of water. He was to be back the night before, but had not come yet. The mother began to think that he had been shot. While they were waiting there was heard a bark from hounds not far away. She and her little fawn ran away as fast as they could but the little one was soon tired out. The mother decided to leave her little one alone and run for her life.

She hid the fawn under a pile of brush and then ran back toward the hounds. When they were close she ran off to the left. She ran many miles and at last she came to a stop.

There were hounds on all sides of her except to the right and on that side was a village. Her only escape was to go through the village and that would be a little dangerous. She thought that she would have to try it.

She started at full speed through the village. She was shot at three times, but she was not hit. As she came to a lake where there were two men in a boat. The hounds were close upon her. She jumped into the lake and swam for the other shore. When she got about half way across the two men saw her. They rowed as fast as they could and soon overtook her. By this time she was well beat out, so she could not swim fast. One of the men caught her by the ear and drew his knife and these two men had steak for dinner the next day.

That night the father deer came home and found his little one in the brush pile. The little one was hungry so the father and little one trotted off to find the mother.
